of Kings Realty Gossip of the Day. There were many large and important transactions in realty within the last week affecting centres where there has been much activity for some time in a few instances and touching sections which have been considered practically immune for speculative purposes, not having figured in the records for years.

It would be difficult to decide which of a dozen trades of the week was of the greatest importance from a financial viewpoint, but perhaps that covering the tale of the West Church to F. G. Bourne aroused more comment than any other, not because of the $2,500,000 it involved, but because of the interest There were many large and important

The library structure is one that improves on acquaintance and is considered by connoisseurs one of the finest public buildings in this country; in fact, a recent visitor who has travelled the world over pronounced it and the Custom House quite the finest buildings of their kind that he had seen in the United States during quite an extended tour.

There is no more saracious operator n New York realty than Robert E. Dowling, the head of the City Investing Company. When Mr. Dowling purchased the old Mercanille Bank site at the corner of Broadway and Dey street for about a million and erected thereon a six story building instead of a skysprage; of twenty stories or more his judgment was quescost a lot more money than the building with which the plot is now invested, and it is doubtful whether it would have sold half as readily as the lower structure. the ground floor of which is leased to the Riker Drug Company at a large rental. which has a profit sharing clause that must have been attractive to the new owner. week came through the announcement that an apartment house of the highest class would be erected at Fifth avenue class would be erected at Fifth avenue and Seventy-second street, right in the heart of the exclusive section of that aristocratic thoroughfare. The news was not received with unmixed feelings, the residents of the section, who had thought themselves beyond the reach of such surroundings, being loud in their protests against what they considered the traditions governing that section of New York. Mr. Eurden and his associates, however, maintain that they had to do something with a property which was costing $75,000 a year to carry, and as there was no disposition on the part of anybody to come forward and take as there was no disposition on the part off anybody to come forward and take the parcels over for sites for private the parcels over for sites for private houses they consider that they are doing the practical thing in planning the building from plans. However, the process of the practical thing in planning the building for an apartment that will be as fine of its kind as brains can devise and money. The Lewis H. has had the apartment site at Seventy-second street for a subject of discussion, the conservative element of society which has for years lived in the lower conditions and the lower street below Foirteenth street have been stirred up-somewhat by the news that the old Lenox mansion at Twelfth street was recently sold by Thomas F. Ryan to Henry Corn, who will erect a huge store and loft building, the land and proposed building to cost more than $2,250,000. As there has been no evidence of trade below Foirteenth street and only a single apartment house in the same territory it will readily be understood that lower Fifth avenue is a greatly perturbed as the residents of the upper section as a result of these encroachments upon their neighborhood.

These were not the only sections of New York to feel the touch of the speculator, who never lets sentiment stand in his way. The Wast Highton with the first loft at the four story house at No. 150 to a Massachusetts and basement in No. 150 to a Massachusetts to the new prokers in the street have been successfully rented to the prokers in the transaction. This building was leased for twenty-one years and the fact that the building has been successfully rented to hon-manufacturing tenants in the hardware line is an evidence that there is demand for buildings with modern equipment standing to more than $2,250,000. The West Eighty-sixth street territory between Amsterdam and Co-lumbus avenues has never had any apartments, and some of the best known men in New York have bought fine houses, in that portion of this beautiful thoroughfare, which is under the park restriction and has always been maintained in with fine trees and grass. A feature of the week was the heavy trading in high class apartments, Joseph J. Money market ease remained undisturbed last week, the preparations for the April 1 disbursements being absolutely without effect upon rates.
